

Instructions for Manuscript Reviewers

Unlike other journal referee requests with which you may be familiar, the article has already been screened and refereed in its early stages, and we are essentially committed to publishing it. At this stage, we ask referees to identify ways in which it can be improved for publication, but this does not preclude substantial revisions if you deem these necessary.

To assist you in writing your referee's report, please organize your comments according to the following headings:

1. Does the review cover the appropriate literature (to the best of your knowledge)?
2. Is the search strategy and inclusion/exclusion criteria for reviewed studies clear and appropriate?
3. Is the policy relevance of the review clear?
4. Are any aspects of the arguments not sufficiently developed or justified?
5. Is the review written in clear language that is not excessively technical?
6. Are there any other comments you would like to make to the author?
7. Are there any other comments you would like to make to the editor (which the author will not see)?
