IN MEMORIAM

The editorial staff of Immunohematology was saddened to learn of the death of Arthur Mournant, anthropologist, hematologist, and geologist, on August 29, 1994, in Jersey, UK. His name has been synonymous with blood group anthropology since the 1940s, and his book, The Distribution of the Human Blood Groups, can be found in any library of transfusion medicine. The second edition of the book, prepared with A.C. Kopec and K. Domaniewska-Sobezak, was published in 1976, and today is the definitive reference work on the subject.

I was reminded that Dr. Mournant, in 1945, was the first one to recognize anti-e and that, in the same year, he collaborated with R.R. Coombs and R.R. Race in the development of the antiglobulin test, still in use today.

While we know Dr. Mournant best for his work in blood group anthropology, he pursued his interest in geology throughout his life and published many papers on the Channel Island. What an interesting and varied life he led!

His contribution to the field of transfusion medicine is a fitting and remarkable legacy.

Mary McGinniss
Managing Editor

1994 Review

Many outstanding articles have been published in Immunohematology this year, culminating in this, our special 10th anniversary issue. We wish to thank not only the authors of those articles, but also our editorial board, whose names are listed in every issue. We also want to thank the following persons who have assisted us in peer reviewing and selecting papers for publication:

Richard G. Cagle, MD
John Case, FIBMS
Mary N. Crawford, MD
Richard Davey, MD
George Garratty, PhD, FIBMS
Virginia Hart, MT(ASCP)SBB
W. John Judd, FIBMS, MBiol

Naomi Lubin, MD
Laurie Marsh, PhD
William Miller, MD
Byron A. Myhre, MD
Sandra J. Nance, MS, MT(ASCP)SBB
Jill Storry, MS, FIBMS
Charles Walias, MD

Delores Mallory
Editor-in-Chief

Mary McGinniss
Managing Editor

Letter From the Editor-in-Chief:

10th Anniversary Gift

The standing magazine file that came with this issue of Immunohematology is a gift to you in honor of our 10th anniversary. The file will hold up to 20 issues (5 years) and will keep the journal neat and easy to locate. If you wish to order extra files, they will be available for $5.00 each. Call Connie Rivera at (301) 738-0526 to order.

Thank you, subscribers, for your continued interest and contributions.

Delores Mallory
Editor-in-Chief

ANNOUNCEMENT

VISA and MasterCard Accepted for Immunohematology and Immunohematology Methods and Procedures: VISA and MasterCard can now be used to subscribe to the journal or to order the methods and procedures manual. The enclosed business reply mail cards have been revised to cover this new service. If you wish to charge your journal subscription and/or the manual, be sure to mail the card(s) in an envelope, to protect your card number.